About 24 Hours in Austin:

Twenty-four Austin photographers were assigned to create a portrait of Austin in one 24-hour day in October. The participants amassed a remarkable body of work that showcases the city from many vantage points, and at all hours, from 6pm on October 14 throughout the night into the next day at 6 pm.

The exhibit features dozens of large-format prints, and opens in Austin Details Art + Photo gallery with a reception on December 3, from 6-9 pm, featuring a live performance by the Saucerians. The exhibit may also be previewed on Saturday, December 3, from 2-5 pm.

Entrants' portfolios, and their final submissions, were juried by gallery director Jann Alexander with Alison Beck, associate director for media at the Briscoe Center for American History at UT.
